Foreword

On June 26-29, 1980, the School of Music at Samford University co-hosted with Hugh McGraw the First National Sacred Harp Sing. Over 1,000 "fa-sol-la" singers from throughout the United States gathered for four days of traditional Sacred Harp Singing and fellowship. The first two days of "shaped note" singing were patterned after the 1844 rule of decorum with only men serving as leaders. On the third day of the "sing" the ladies presided. On the closing day, a Sunday, the traditional memorial service, preaching and the "parting hand" ceremony were observed.

These four days on the Samford University campus gave currency to the fact that interest in Sacred Harp music is on the upswing. More and more, people from every walk of life are discovering the joys of "fa-sol-la" singing and are responding to it the way they did a century ago.

On the following pages the events of the First National Sacred Harp are chronicled. It is hoped that these minutes and pictures will provide first hand 1980 insight into and historical perspective for the art of Sacred Harp singing as it moves toward the 21st century.

Welcoming Words

It was so good having each of you at our First National Sacred Harp Sing in Birmingham, Alabama, June 26-29, 1980. These four days of singing seemed to fly by. They were over before we knew it.

It I could "boil down" into just a few descriptive words what those beautiful June, 1980, days on the Samford University campus meant to so many of us I would have to say: "Singing - Fellowship - Recollecting - Looking toward the Future."

My but we sang! Four solid days "fa-sol-la" singing in a multi-million dollar fine arts center. You know Sacred Harp singing sounds great in a beautiful auditorium.

My but we fellowshipped! From the opening day to the "parting hand" ceremony on Sunday, we all participated in a blessed time of renewing old friendships and making new acquaintances.

My but we recollected! It was a unique time of remembering our heritage - of reflecting upon the rock from which we have been hewn.

My but we dreamed and planned for the future! It's mighty heartening to know that our old tradition is still carried on just like our grandfathers before us. I am convinced after our national sing in Birmingham that the future of Sacred Harp singing is solid. People still respond today as they did over a century ago.

Mark your calendar now for next year's Second National Sacred Harp Sing, June 18-20, 1981.

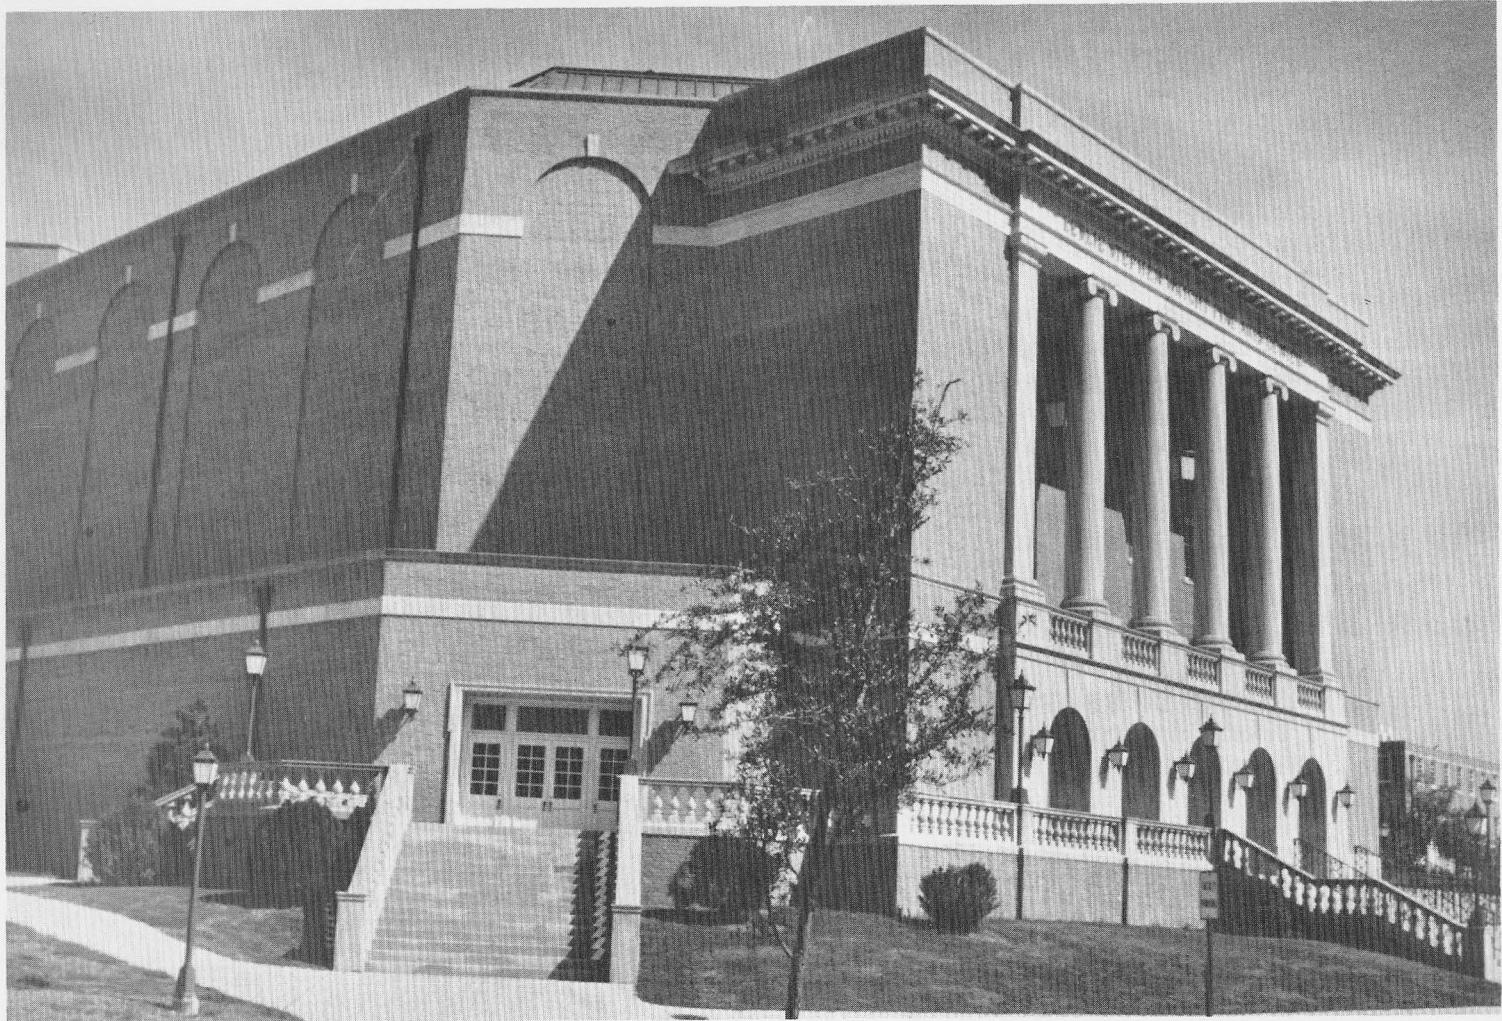

"Sing"cerely yours,
Hugh McGraw

An Overview of the "SING"

FIRST NATIONAL SACRED HARP SING

SAMFORD UNIVERSITY, BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

June 26-29, 1980

It began as a dream in the heart of Hugh McGraw, long time executive secretary of Sacred Harp Publishing Company. It gained momentum in planning sessions with Dr. William J. Reynolds and Samford University Music School Dean, Claude H. Rhea. The first national Sacred Harp Sing was announced. Public invitations were issued and widely disseminated in a press release with a Birmingham date-line: "Singers from throughout the U.S. are expected to attend the first national Sacred Harp Sing to be held at Samford University June 26-29, 1980. According to Hugh McGraw, the gathering will recreate the original Sacred Harp convention as it happened in 1844 in Upson County, GA. No national meetings have been held in recent years, although more than 700 'sings' are held throughout the South each year. 'We hope that everyone who participates in these events will also attend the one we have planned,' said McGraw. The June convention is sponsored by the Samford School of Music, Dr. Claude Rhea, Dean. Morning and afternoon song sessions will be held daily at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. A special worship service will be held on Sunday at 10:45 a.m. All sessions will be held in the Wright Center Concert Hall on the Samford campus. Admission is free."

They came. . .

"Fa-sol-la" singers came to the national sing at Samford - - myriads of them came. Young and old. Yankees from Boston. Michiganders. Plain folks from Arab and Boaz and Bremen and Sand Mountain. They traveled in shiny new Cadillacs, dented Mustangs and battered pick-up trucks. Pierre Cardin creations and old fashioned calico rubbed shoulders and faced each other in a traditional hollow-square singing configuration of treble, alto, tenor and bass.

Even in the unlikely setting of a multi-million dollar, air-conditioned fine arts center, the common denominator of Sacred Harp singing served as an unseen magnet--a force which: (1) attracted a cross section of people from multiple vocations, divergent life styles and widely disjunct socio-economic levels and (2) melded them into a wonderfully unified and harmonic whole.

Those ubiquitous "shaped notes" were transformed by dedicated voices from cold, inert print in oblong books into vibrant renditions of hymn tunes which deeply stirred the hearts of singers and listeners alike.

They sang. . .

My but they sang! More than 1,000 convention participants from 16 states ranging from California to Massachusetts sang from special reprints of the original 1844 Sacred Harp. Holding song books in one hand and keeping time with a funeral home fan in the other, they sang in 4 part, open, unaccompanied style. Welcomes were given, scriptures read and prayers offered. "Lessons" were introduced. On days one and two, the 1844 convention format was followed, even down to the order of the business meeting. The ladies were allowed to sing but not speak.

On Saturday, day three, the ancient format was changed. It was Ladies Day! All leadership activities were taken over by women. The singing was never better during the convention.

They worshipped. . .

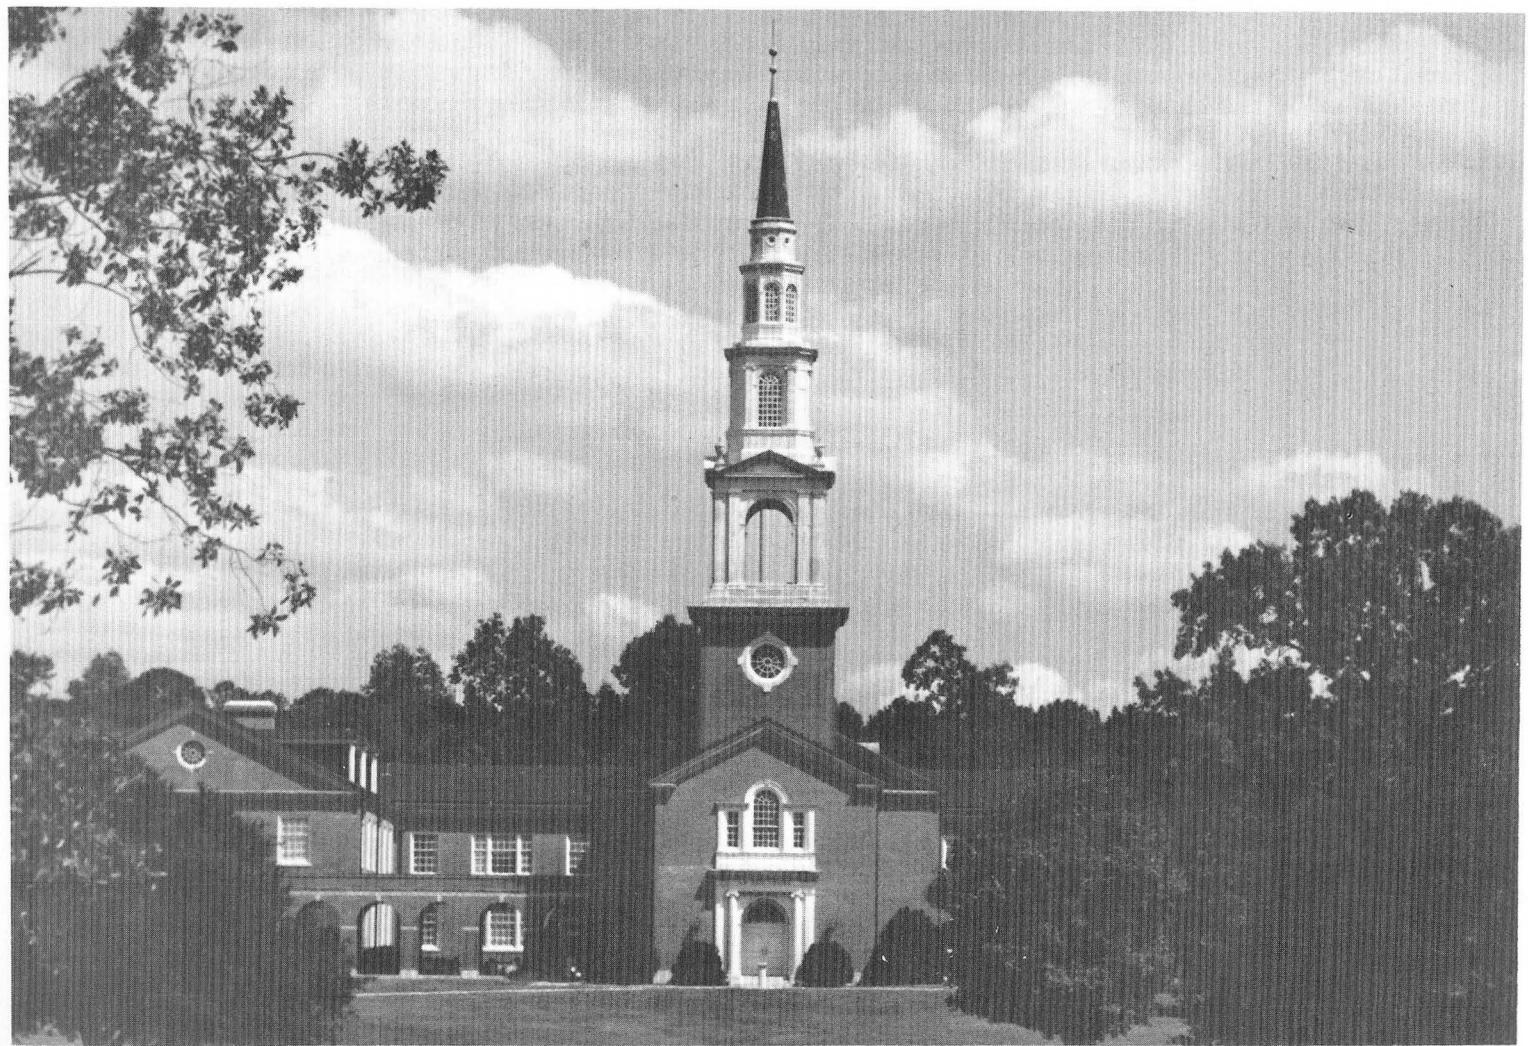

Sunday was the final day of the four day event. Traditional rich "program items" were carried out in a precise and proscribed manner. The Memorial Committee "called to remembrance the names of friends now departed to their heavenly reward." A somber sense of history and of belonging permeated the proceedings. The sermon was preached by Dr. W. T. Edwards, the University Chaplain. The "parting hand" was offered. Tears flowed freely. . .

Postlude

Sacred Harp music is part of our American heritage. The national "sing" at Samford University in June 1980 evidenced the fact that tradition has changed very little since 1844. People still respond today just as they did over a century ago. Perhaps the phenomenon can best be explained and summed up in the words of Uncle Bob Denson, octogenerian "fa-sol-la singer" who once said of Sacred Harp singing "If you don't like it, you had better stay away from it, because it will get hold of you and you can't get away."

The chairman called Donald Ross, Chairman of the Memorial Committee, to conduct the Memorial Lesson.

Mr. Ross read the following tribute.

"We now come to that solemn part of our program that we call the Memorial Lesson. Traditionally this memorial service has been a time when we pause to remember and honor those from among our particular group who have departed this life during the past year. However, since this is the first time for this national gathering, the deceased loved ones to whom we will pay tribute today never had the opportunity to be a part of a truly national singing such as we have had for these 4 days. Nevertheless, since we are a people proud of and eternally grateful for our traditions and heritage, this inter-state event would not be complete without a Memorial Lesson.

In a few moments Mrs. Ruth Brown will read to you the names reported of those lovers of Sacred Harp music who have passed away during the past year. In addition to these names, your Memorial Committee asks each of you to also remember those departed devotees to Sacred Harp from all the years past who have been especially close to you. Yesterday, I overheard someone say, "Oh, how Ruth Denson Edwards would have enjoyed these four days of singing." I, too, have been thinking of so many old Sacred Harp stalwarts of the past from my section of the country who would have loved to have been a part of this singing. These are the ones we want to remember today during this Memorial Lesson in addition to the names which Mrs. Brown will now read to you."

"The committee has selected the following 3 singers to lead one song each for Memorial Lesson: M. F. McWhorter from AL; Loyd Redding from GA; Kelly Beard from TX. Before they lead these memorial songs, I'd like to share a thought with you that comes from a little book written by our chaplain's wife, Carolyn Rhea, concerning the subject of death: "Death is not a terror to be feared but a kindly instrument wielded in the hands of God, by which He brings a mortal into the joy of His immortal presence." Also, a little verse of scripture: Psalm 116: 15: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

Respectfully submitted,
Donald Ross

Hugh McGraw took charge and made announcements. He announced that the second National Singing Convention would be held at Samford University on June 18, 19 and 20, 1981.

He sang 46 and called for the report of the Resolutions Committee.

Walter Parker read the Resolutions as follows:

The committee thus extends thanks to all who have contributed in any way to the success of the very interesting program presented at the first National Sacred Harp Convention, June 26-29, 1980.

We wish especially to include our thanks to Dr. Claude H. Rhea, Dean of Music, Samford University, for his help in planning and originating the program, and as a representative of the college in carrying through to conclusion.

Then to Samford University for the use of the building for the four days session, we are much indebted.

We must not overlook the hundreds of Sacred Harp singers who attended and sang so beautifully and earnestly to make the four days really a success. These, as reported were from fifteen states of this United States. To them we express our thanks.

Then, last but not least, to Hugh McGraw who has spent hours and hours planning the program and guiding it through to conclusion, we express our thanks and appreciation for a job well done.

ANNOUNCING:

SECOND NATIONAL SACRED HARP SING

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

June 18, 19, 20, 1981

Concerning SACRED HARP Singing . . .

"IF YOU DON'T LIKE IT, YOU HAD BETTER STAY AWAY FROM IT, BECAUSE IT WILL GET HOLD OF YOU AND YOU CAN'T GET AWAY."

—UNCLE TOM DENSON
